6-18 months: US Patent Office examines the application and may issue a report with objections. Amendments to the claims, or arguments in support of the claims, may be required before allowance of the claims. Again, you may be consulted.

18 months: Publication of applications filed in most countries (not the United States).

Ongoing: Foreign Patent Office search results issued, examination reports issued at any time, and amendments may need to be considered. Again, you may be consulted.

>36 months: Application proceeds to grant in each country if all objections are overcome (N.B. only describe your invention as 'patented' after grant. Otherwise, use the term 'patent pending'). Grant of patents in some countries, e.g. Japan, may take several years longer.
