MEMORANDUM

REGARDING: ALTER SYSTEM FOR PSYCHOLOGICAL THERAPY

JC542 U.S. PTO
29/114482
11/23/99

The client system involves a series of fantastical characters and destinations that represent the state of mind of the child or adolescent (4 through 14) who is using the wizard's way system as part of a mental health therapy. The system has home, school and hospital components. As utilized in the hospital environment the system can define the entire therapeutic process for a mental health unit. For example, in a conventional mental health hospital treatment unit, the patients are rewarded in accordance with a points system. For example a patient who follows prescribed staff directions may be rewarded with a certain number of points, which may permit the patient to have access to a recreational facility, or to obtain a pass for an out-of-hospital excursion. In the wizard's way system, these points are expressed as magic wands and various ways are provided to record the child's progress, and to accumulate rewards as various specific progress steps are taken. A game boards, guide books, index cards may be part of the complete system. Specific treatment modalities are identified with "Empires" such as the River of woe which has to do with depression and therefore, with different therapeutic steps to relieve the depression.

The system has evolved over a ten-year period.
