CERTIFICATE

We, General Instrument Corporation (formerly NextLevel Systems, Inc.), a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, United States of America, and having its principal offices at 101 Tournament Drive, Horsham, PA 19044, USA, do hereby certify that:

NextLevel Systems, Inc. was incorporated as a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Instrument Corporation ("Old GI") on January 6, 1997. NextLevel Systems, Inc. has changed its name back to General Instrument Corporation ("New GI") effective February 2, 1998.

Effective as of July 28, 1997, Old GI was divided into three separate public companies:

- NextLevel Systems, Inc. (now New GI), a leading worldwide supplier of systems and equipment for high performance networks delivering video, voice and internet/data services;
- General Semiconductor, Inc. (formerly Old GI), a leading supplier of low-to-medium power rectifiers and transient voltage suppressors;
- CommScope, Inc., the leading worldwide supplier and manufacturer of coaxial cable for broadband communications and a leading supplier of high-performance electronic cables.

In view of the fact that General Instrument of Taiwan, Ltd. ("GIT") was comprised of businesses from both NextLevel Systems's Communications Division and General Semiconductor's Power Semiconductor Division, GIT was divided into two independent companies with separate factories. To such effect, a new company (temporarily named NextLevel Systems (Taiwan) Ltd.) was established in Taiwan by Old GI on March 12, 1997. All the land, buildings and equipment relating to the Communications Division, as well as the employees, were sold and transferred from GIT to NextLevel Systems (Taiwan) Ltd.

As a result of the July 28, 1997 spin-off, General Instrument of Taiwan, Ltd.'s business is focused on the semiconductor business. The English corporate name was changed from "General Instrument of Taiwan, Ltd." to "General Semiconductor of Taiwan, Ltd." on May 22, 1997.

NextLevel Systems (Taiwan) Ltd.'s business is focused on the manufacture of broadband communications equipment and instruments and the company name should be changed to "General Instrument of Taiwan, Ltd." The corporate name of the immediate parent corporation of NextLevel Systems (Taiwan) Ltd. will be changed to General Instrument Holdings (Taiwan), Inc. very shortly. To consummate the spin-off transactions, NextLevel Systems (Taiwan) Ltd. has been authorized to use "General Instrument of Taiwan, Ltd." as its corporate name.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, this Certificate has been executed on the 18th day of February of 1998.

GENERAL INSTRUMENT CORPORATION
(formerly NextLevel Systems, Inc.)

By:

Richard C. Smith

Vice President, Business Development and Treasurer

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA :
